U. S. Engineers Slowly Raising Isonzo At Noon

BATTERY OF 8 WINCHES USED

First Pull Is Made at 9:15 o'Clock

PROGRESS RAPIDLY

Expect to Reach Even Keel Early This Afternoon

The capsized Italian motorship Isonzo is being raised today with cable and steam windlasses.

First pull on the overturned vessel was made at 9:15 a. m. when at the signal from Assistant Engineer Stevenson, of Galveston, throttles were opened on the battery of eight winches and heaving the vessel was started.

Take Up Slack

At the end of six or eight minutes, the pull was stopped to take up the steel cables on No. 2 winch, and shortly after 9:30 the winches again commenced heaving the vessel over. When another stop was ordered to take up cable, the starboard anchor, which had been completely submerged, was clear of the water.

Breaking of a pulley on the lines leading out to No. 7 winch stopped the work about 10 a. m., and engineers in charge announced repairs would be made and pulling gotten underway again at noon. It is expected that the vessel will be gotten on even keel early this afternoon, engineers said.

Major B. B. Browne, of Galveston, U. S. government engineer in charge of the floating plant and disbursements for the Galveston district, and R. B. Gillette, an assistant engineer, also of Galveston, arrived at the scene of the wreck early today with Captain Ventura, master of the Isonzo, and Ernest Papich, Port Arthur representative of the Royal Italian Navy.

Complete Preparations

Final preparations for making the pull on the Isonzo were completed late Friday afternoon when pilings were sunk behind the last of the eight steam windlasses rigged up on the canal bank to leave the capsized vessel over. Heavy steel cables, nearly 10 of them, slung around the submerged hull, were run over to the winches through quadruple steel pulleys. When the scores of workmen knocked off Friday night at dark, every line was taut and all in readiness for the initial heave of the windlasses.

Divers vainly attempted to get down in the engine room on the Isonzo Friday afternoon when pilings were sunk behind the last of the eight steam windlasses rigged up on the canal bank to leave the capsized vessel over. Heavy steel cables, nearly 10 of them, slung around the submerged hull, were run over to the winches through quadruple steel pulleys. When the scores of workmen knocked off Friday night at dark, every line was taut and all in readiness for the initial heave of the windlasses.

Use Centrifugal Pumps

Powerful centrifugal pumps and hose lines on a derrick barge are in readiness for the job of pumping out the Isonzo. Hatches and ports in the side of the submerged port side of the vessel that could be reached have been battened down and closed by the divers. Pumping out the flooded pentst operation about 36 hours, it is estimated. Once refloated, the Isonzo can be quickly towed down the canal and the waterway re-opened to traffic. Unconfirmed reports at the wreck Friday had it that the forward end of the capsized ship was afloat.

Sinking foundation piling in an almost bottomless marsh upon which the right powerful steam windless could be fixed to stand the strain of heaving the ship over was one of the chief difficulties encountered by the government engineers in the attempt to right the Isonzo, Port Arthur shipping men pointed out. Stringing thousands of feet of heavy, unwieldy steel cable, rigging it through the

Police Fear For Life Of Wealthy New York Boy Who Disappeared

Romantic Tales of Travel Abroad On Trade Ships Scouted When Franks Case Reviewed

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Although romantic tales of travel and visions of strange lands and storm swept seas may have taken Franklin Roske, 14-year-old son of wealth from his parents' luxurious apartment, police today are pointing to the grave similarity between the boy's continued absence and the disappearance of Bobby Franks.

It was a young hunchback hobo, a street corner acquaintance, who took Franklin to the foot of Riverside Drive, pointed to the ships at anchor in the river and told him of playgrounds around the world.

Chum Tells Story

This was learned from Michael Levy, 11, a chum, who has told of Franklin's acquaintance with the hunchback. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roske, have been distressed, since Tuesday when the boy left for school and did not return in the evening.

"My pet, my baby, oh my baby," cries Mrs. Roske. "How could he ever leave his home. I have given him everything."

When he left home, Frank had, so far as his father knows, had only $1.50 in change, but he carried an expensive gold watch.

Remote Places Searched

For three days wharves, parks, railway stations and even more remote possibilities have been scoured and no trace of the boy has been found. His father, has ordered a nationwide search.

Kidnaping is not suspected because the boy left the apartment Tuesday without his school books, although the mother had prepared them and left them neatly piled on a table near the door. This points to a premeditated departure.

SLAUGHTER 1150 DISEASED STOCK

Foot, Mouth Epidemic Found In Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 27.—Eleven hundred and fifty head of cattle, comprising the herds of Dr. William Jacobs and Tom C. Dunn, Jr., infected with the foot and mouth disease, will be slaughtered sometime today or early tomorrow, according to confirmed reports from state and federal officials this morning.

A huge steam shovel, provided by officials of Harris county, was being used this morning to open a trench on the ranch of Dr. Jacobs in which the cattle will be buried.

Strict Quarantine

Although no definite announcement of a quarantine has been made, it is understood that Harris, Galveston parts of Fort Bend and Brazoria counties will be placed under strict quarantine during the morning.

Twenty-five state guards are already on duty around the infected area. This force is expected to be augmented during the day.

Dipping Vats Urged

J. E. Boag-Scott, chairman of the state livestock commission, has advised all adjoining counties to immediately erect dipping vats for automobiles on their main highways leading into Harris county, it became known today.

Other measures for halting the spread of the epidemic are expected to be instituted during the day.

Dr. Jacobs first noticed a disease among his cattle several days ago. He immediately notified authorities who conducted a secret investigation. Jacobs has a herd of 450 fine Brahmas, it is said. He values them at $76,000.

Spread from Ranch

The infection apparently spread from the ranch of Dr. Jacobs to Dunn's herd, separated only by a railroad track. Dunn also has a fine herd but no estimate of his loss has been heard.

The disease may have originated, Dr. Jacobs believes, through his transportation of a bull from South America recently.

Grave fears were expressed here this morning that an embargo would be declared by foreign nations from exports from the port at Houston. The close of the port at this part of the season would mean hundreds of thousands dollars loss to cotton exporters.

FEDERALISTS IN PARANA ROUTED

Independent State Declared as Rebels Enter

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—Brazilian government troops in the state of Parana were defeated and routed in battle with revolutionaries who have declared their independence, according to dispatches received here today.

The news means that the Brazilian revolution, thought to have been suppressed, has flared up again.

Countless Forces

Revolutionary officers with an unknown number of followers struck at the government in Parana, a state of more than half a million population. They proclaimed it an independent state, giving it the name of Brasilienida.

According to a revolutionary manifesto, the new state includes the southern part of Matto Grosso, as well as part of Parana.

The manifesto was signed by Generals Diaz Lopez and Juan Francisco, and Colonels Bernardo Eadilhar and Miguel Costa, who were prominent in the Sao Paulo revolt.

The rebels scored at least one decisive victory over the loyal troops, who fled as the fight ensued.

4 DWELLINGS ENTERED HERE LAST NIGHT

Holdup Man Shoots Twice at C. Z. Zock

DRAGNET FORMED

12 Burglaries In Week Reported By Police

Terror reigned in the residential districts of Port Arthur today with unidentified burglars, including a negro gunman, still at large.

Four burglaries reported at headquarters last night around 10 and 11 o'clock sent members of the police department hurrying to several sections of the city in quest of a black marauder, and ran the total number of robberies of the week here up to 12.

Zock Home Robbed

"Zero hour" in the holdups and robberies came at 11 o'clock last night when C. Z. Zock, 2749 Tenth street, was fired upon twice by a negro thief who accosted Zock as the latter entered his residence.

Today, police officials were spreading a dragnet in quest of "a dangerous negro," believed by Tenth street residents to be the holdup artist who terrorized Orange for the past few weeks, but who fled to Port Arthur when Orange citizens and police started a drive to corner the burglar.

Saw 'Yellow' Negro

Zock told the police last night that when he entered his home he saw a "yellow negro" of medium height plundering drawers to a dressing table. Zock switched on the lights, police reported, and simultaneously the negro wheeled and fired twice, then fled through the rear of the residence, breaking through a fastened screen.

Neither of the shots took effect. Many people in the neighborhood where Zock lived heard the shots and called the police station. City detectives hurried to the scene and secured a good description of the negro. It was believed today the negro would be apprehended by police before many hours. The negro in fleeing from the Zock residence carried away with him a pair of trousers and $2 in cash.

Other Thefts

Other thefts made last night and which have been reported today to the police department included the residence at 2100 Twelfth where entry was made through a rear window and a few articles of clothing taken. The third burglary of the night was at the residence of Allen Norris, 711 Eleventh, where a screen was first split, the hook raised and then the entire screen removed. Changes amounting to $1.40 was taken from a pair of trousers.

The residence of John W. King, 2347 Tenth boulevard was also entered during the night and some clothing stolen.

Besides last night's four reported burglaries, police records show the following entries of houses and business concerns since last Monday night:

On Police Blotter
A. Amun, 800 Houston, $10 gold piece stolen from purse.

W. A. Noble, 344 West Fourteenth, $5 in old coins taken from a trunk and $1 removed from trousers.

L. W. Morris, 234 West Thirtieth, reported screen off and signs of house being entered.

Hanson Avery, 920 West Tenth three $5 bills, a hat, and shirt stolen from his room which was found badly trampled up when he returned from work.

Residence at 636 Eleventh entered. Member of family heard noise and scared negro prowler away. Screen was found out.

In the same block on the same night, 639 Eleventh, a gold watch was stolen.

Bell Commission company place of business, 621 Houston, entered but nothing taken as far as present check-up shows.

In no instance has any large amount of money been taken and usually only available clothing in the houses robbed was appropriated. Police are practically positive the work is being done by negro prowlers. All descriptions of those sent by householders have been of negroes. This week's residence burglary series follows the clearing by the police department recently of another group of petty thefts. This was accomplished with the arrest of Charley Brown, negro escaped convict, who confessed to a number of local burglaries. Brown escaped from the Huntsville penitentiary this week. That the wholesale entry of houses cannot continue and all suspects will be herded in and "worked over" at the police station, was the statement there this morning.

WAXAHACHIE, Sept. 27.—A car may look at a queen, but a tiny yellow jacket passed the car when it caused Judge P. L. Hawkins of the criminal court of appeals to ditch his car near here recently.

The judge and Mrs. Hawkins were en route here when Mrs. Hawkins swatted one of the pestiferous insects, which fell on the floor boards of the car. Neither car nor its occupants were injured and the yellow jacket escaped.

COCKROACHES, RATS, BLAMED FOR FIRES

HOUSTON, Sept. 27.—Ravenous cockroaches and frolisome rats rank high in the list of "firebugs" according to a decision of Fire Chief Rollie Ollire, in explaining the possible origin of several mysterious fires in Houston recently.

Cockroaches have an affinity for sulphur tipped matches, local firemen say. Rats, too, are fond of a toothsome meal of sulphur, guardians of the public safety declared. One fire-fighter said he witnessed a cockroach gnaw a match head and although the insect paid with its life for the meal, the match was entirely consumed.

Horses Out of Style But They Still Sell

Despite the increase of autos and trucks, the demand for horses persists. Saddle horses and truck horses are especially in demand. Heavy horse-drawn trucking continues in the larger cities and the search for more horses for this purpose is said to have increased.

In Vermont, the government's Morgan Horse Farm has a call for every trained horse it can produce. Trained thoroughbreds bring from $1000 to $1500 each.

Short Hair Craze Destroying Woman's Crowning Glory, Says Hair Specialist

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
News Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Project yourself five or ten years into the future before you bob your hair, advises Charles Nestle, vice president of the Wholesale Beauty Trade association.

"Consider," he urges, "whether you prefer to have your hair on your head or on your face and distributed over your body."

"In every human being is a chemical laboratory that is constantly producing hair," he explains. "If it is not permitted to grow on the head it would grow elsewhere. Cutting distributes the growth."

"If the fad for short hair continues, baldness will be as common with women as with men in the next generation and so will hairy arms and chests."

Don't Brush Hair Any More
Nestle is one of the leading hair specialists of the world. Bobbed hair has increased his business as well as that of practically every other hair dressing establishment in the country. So he is quite resigned, from a matter of business, to let the shearing go on. But he believes women ought to realize what they may be bringing upon themselves and their children.

"The reason women have less hair on their bodies than men is because for years they have concentrated so much energy on their heads and have encouraged the growth to settle there," he goes on.

"By brushing and caring for their hair as they used to in the days when hair was their crowning glory women stimulated the scalp and kept it in a condition conducive to the growth of hair."

"Today the bobbed woman rarely brushes her hair. She isn't going to press out the wave she paid money to have pressed in. So she runs a comb through it a few times just as a man does, and that's that."

Bobbed Hair Destroys Illusions
"Then, in order to keep it looking well without real care, she washes it once a week and eventually has so robbed it of its natural oil it is no longer able to grow naturally. The ends split and the hair falls."

"It is true women are spending more time and money at the hair-dressers than ever before, getting shampoos, waves and trims, but their hair is actually receiving less care than ever before."

He maintains that six months after a woman has cut her hair she can notice an added growth upon her arms, particularly if she exercises so that she frequently brings the blood to the surface.

His greatest objection to short hair, however, is his belief that it robs a woman of her sex appeal.

"Women are interesting to men in romance and glamour," he concludes. "When she cuts her hair a woman destroys one more illusion—and there are so few left as it is."

COTTON IN ELLIS IS FALLING SHORT

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Sept. 27.—Statistics released here show that 5,162 bales of cotton had been ginned at the five Waxahachie gins. While this is somewhat short of the number ginned at the same date in 1923, it shows that cotton has begun moving faster on the local market than at any time this season.

Although on Sept. 1 only 13,000 bales had been ginned, compared with 29,000 at the same time last year, farmers estimated Monday that almost 40,000 bales had been ginned at this time. Estimates place the total yield in the county at around 100,000 bales. Last year Ellis county produced 112,000 bales.

Picking was delayed considerably by the rainfall of Sunday afternoon. Although only .09 of an inch fell in Waxahachie, heavy rains were reported in various sections.

TO PREACH ON GOING HUNTING

Musical Program Arranged For Evening

Rev. R. R. Yelderman's message Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock at the First Christian church will be on the topic, "Let's Go Hunting."

Rev. Yelderman said today that he was possessed of the nimrod tendency himself and had prepared this sermon for the man who prides himself upon being a man and lover of the great outdoors. It is said there will be some surprises in this message and these will etch themselves upon the memory so that one will remember them for years to come.

An appropriate musical program is being arranged by the choir for the Sunday evening's service. Services begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

TROLLEY FRANCHISE NEARING COMPLETION

Port Arthur's traction franchise probably will be given one reading by the city commission during the time that the document is sent to President C. H. Bossler of the traction company at Dayton, Ohio, for formal approval.

City Attorney Wistner is having the franchise copied from the original with all insertions subsequently made, and expects to mail the franchise to Bossler this week. Bossler, who gave his approval to all provisions last week while here, is expected to send back his signed approval on a sheet attached to the franchise.

The franchise is expected to become law within a month.

SEEK JOBS FOR TEXAS STUDES

Y.M.C.A. Aids Freshmen in Finding Work

AUSTIN, Sept. 26.—Every possible effort is being made by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of the University of Texas as well as by the administrative authorities of that institution to find employment for the many young women and young men students who are in the necessity of earning all or part of their expenses while obtaining an education. It is a fact not generally known that more than 45 per cent of the students work their way through the university. This has been the case practically ever since the institution was established, it is stated. Of recent years, however, there has been a large increase in the number of young women students who seek part time employment as a means of meeting their living expenses while in school. It is not unusual for young women and young men to arrive at the beginning of the session without any financial means and with no employment in sight. It rarely happens that an ambitious and determined student of this kind fails to get employment.

The positions filled by students take a wide range. Some of them wait on table, others are night watchmen at the capital, others do clerical work and quite a number of young men are employed part time in gasoline filling stations, garages and in other jobs around town. Many students find part time employment in the various departments of the university. It is declared by observing instructors that the student who through necessity is forced to work his way through the university shows an earnestness in his studies that almost invariably wins good scholarship.

Sneed Barry was elected president, Francis Smith, vice president; Larry Craddock, secretary-treasurer, and Frank Sayle, sergeant-at-arms. Bob Payne, cad yell leader, pledged the sophomore class not to haze or harm in any manner the freshmen. The pledge signed was as follows:

"We, the sophomore class of 1924, pledge not to haze, during the entire year, any freshman on his way to or from the rallies and the convocations. This includes college night."

INTEREST SEEN IN UNIVERSITY BAND

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 27.—With the largest number of tryouts in its history, the Longhorn band of the University of Texas held the first rehearsal of the fall session Wednesday. There were 110 new men present. In a short talk, Royal Calder of Hillsboro, president of the band, defined the three chief requisites for membership as being musical ability, loyalty to the band and to the university and scholastic ability. Selection of the manager of the band will be made October 1, in accordance with the constitution of the organization which provides that the manager shall be selected ten days after the day of registration. Besides the 110 new applicants there will be approximately 70 of the old men back. Burnett Pharr, who has been director for the last three years, will continue in this position during the 1924-25 season.

TAMMANY HALL OPPOSES TEDDY

Al Smith to Be Opponent in Race

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Tammany Hall will pit its strength against the house of Roosevelt in the New York state campaign this year. Al Smith, acknowledged head of the New York democratic organization, was nominated by acclamation by the democratic state convention here. He will begin a strong campaign for the governorship, running on a platform supporting the democratic national program but denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name and demanding modification of the Volstead law to legalize sale of beer and light wines "under such careful restrictions as were imposed by the law passed in New York in 1920."

The republican convention at Rochester nominated Theodore Roosevelt, as its gubernatorial candidate and Roosevelt tendered his resignation as assistant secretary of the navy to President Coolidge and announced he will start campaigning at once.

Things you believe in

Belief has tunneled mountains, fought diseases, carried tons on columns of air, spun advertisements, telephones, telegraphs, radios to web the world together.

You believe in belief and what it achieves. You believe in advertisements, for they are evidences of belief. You believe in advertised goods, for they are the things other men believe in.

When you see a widely advertised lace curtain, you see a curtain that hangs in thousands of homes . . . a widely advertised lead pencil, a pencil that thousands carry. You don't try advertised wares to test them. You try them to bring yourself fresh satisfaction.

Read the advertisements in these columns daily. They help you recognize wares that justify belief.

IT DOESN'T EXIST NOW

That So-Bohemian Greenwich Village

THERE is something pathetic in the way Greenwich Village is fighting hard to save its reputation as the only real Latin Quarter in the country.

Greenwich Village rapidly is dying. The end is not far off—and only a civic pulmotor can save it from a potter's grave.

And there are those who would like to see the pulmotor used vigorously.

"After all," says Betty Prescott, manager of the new Village theater, the Cherry Lane, "there is but one Greenwich Village in all the country. Is it not worth saving? Latin Quarter adds romance and color to a country. It is expected visitors to this country, and visitors to New York from this country, look for it. Take Greenwich Village away and the city is reduced to a drab affair indeed."

Greenwich Village, she argues, is a good advertisement for New York. It's the show place of the town. Its winding streets and dimly lighted shops and eating places attract thousands yearly, and disappointment would be keen if they were to pass out of existence.

"Even seven short years ago," says Miss Prescott, "the Village was a different place. In those days you could go to a French pastry shop, get a cup of coffee and cinnamon bun for as low as 7 cents. And you could sit in the shop as long as you want and meet the people worth meeting."

CANT LINGER NOW
"What is it today? The same coffee costs 10 cents and a bun with butter 13 cents, and they shoo you out if you stay too long."

The Cherry Lane Theater, which Miss Prescott manages, has arisen, apparently, from the dying embers of a past day. It is a small intimate theater, just the type you'd expect to find in a Latin Quarter.

The Village is a victim of real estate mania. Modern apartment houses, far-removed from romance, are springing up over night. And lusty prices they bring, too.

A walk through the Village of a night will show how sad a place the section has become.

RESIDENCE DISTRICT
Once called the home of long-haired men and short-haired women, it has become a mere residential section. The little eating places are not headquarters for cliques of Bohemians any more. They are sordid commercial affairs, and the only wish of their proprietors is to make money. You can't hate them for that, as the saying goes, but for simon-pure Bohemians and artists, it doesn't seem exactly the thing.

In the olden days the Village was a rendezvous for artists, writers of all kinds, models and their ilk. Studios were to be found everywhere. Fun ran riot.

MacDougal Alley, a relic of the village of yesteryear

ARTISTS SCATTERED
There are some artists and writers left, to be sure, but the majority of them are scattered through the city. Many artists have studios on Central Park West. Writers may be found everywhere. Newspaper men have taken to boarding houses on the unromantic side streets off of Central Park West.

And, as a result of this migration, only the shell of the original Village is left.

A walk through the streets will convince one of that. One sees here and there queer-looking signs, rather grotesque. Here is the Pig and Whistle. There is the Pepper Pot. Here is the Blind Bat. There is the Blue Horse. Here is the Wash Rag. There is the What Not.

And so they run. Take a look in and what do you find. A few people desperately trying to guide the spoon from their soup plate to their mouth in the dim light of a few inexpensive candles. Candles, by the way, are about the only thing left of the old Greenwich Village. They just will hang on.

EAT UPTOWN
Very few of these people live in the Village. Residents of that section are becoming too wise to eat in their own kitchens, so to speak. You will find them in uptown places, preferably hotels. And thereby hangs another tale.

The reason they eat in the swell uptown hotels is because they have money. You can't live in the Village and be poor at the same time any more. There was a day, not very many years back, when all you needed to get by in Greenwich Village was a colossal nerve and a un-Godly amount of unconventionality. They lived in garrets and would cook their frankfurters over gas jets. But then rents were low. Now the rents are abnormally high and this has forced the poor out.

NOT HIGH, BUT—
Prices in restaurants in the Village aren't expensive. That is one thing one must acknowledge. But they aren't cheap, either. The point is they are about the same as they are in any other restaurant in the city—but in the latter the lighting isn't so hard on the eyes and the chairs aren't quite so uncomfortable.

A number of the places in the Village are in dirty basements. A cobweb or two only adds to the "romance" of the place, and ordinary kitchen chairs, with a few daubs of futuristic painting smeared on, are used.

There is one place, a waffle shop, that has attracted some attention. It is in a basement, entrance being down a flight of rickety stairs. Inside one finds a few chairs and tables and a phonograph. Here gather a few college students from Columbia University, who come down here away from their papas and mamas and sing college songs to the tune of a uke.

The proprietor is a young woman with a keen eye to business.

Modern apartments are rising in Greenwich village

One might expect to find her a typical Bohemian, with startling views on marriage, divorce and Freud.

EYE TO BUSINESS
Instead one finds that she has been on the stage. That she lives uptown with her family. And that she has found this the very best way of making a living.

She has a feeling of pity for the poor boob who come down to her shop and imagine they are Bohemians, but as long as they continue to come and eat her waffles why should she worry?

Washington Square is the center of the Village. The Village radiates from the Square. This is the place that inspired the song, "Rise of Washington Square."

NOISY PLACE
Such inspiration couldn't have come on Sunday night. On this night there is a band concert during summer months. Here gather hundreds. They sit around listening to the coarse metallic sounds of the instruments. They bring the babies, too. And there are lots of them. They bawl and they scream, and, all in all, it is terrible.

There is one section of the Village that is probably the most desirable section of the city in which to live. That is lower Fifth Avenue, from 8th to 12th streets. Here it is quiet. Here are found real mansions. But here the person with less than a million can't live.

And there is another section of the Village that attracts attention, but from a different viewpoint. Since the passage of the prohibition laws there has sprung up a gang of bootleggers who make the Village their headquarters.

They are credited with supplying the white light cabarets with the bootleg liquor that comes from the three-mile limit. The street they hang around is a somber place a forbidding place.

FIGHT, MAYHAP
It is dark and gloomy, and if you are patient you may be lucky enough to see a gun-fight. No, the Village isn't what it used to be. And unless a determined effort is made to keep down rents, keep out modern apartment houses and restore the section to its rightful inhabitants, the carefree Bohemian, artist group, it will never be the same.

You could sit in the shop as long as you want and meet the people worth meeting

"THE PERICARDIUM" IS WOMAN'S HOUSE OF HEART DESIGN

A HEART BED

HEARTS PREDOMINATE IN FURNITURE

EVEN TREES FOLLOW DESIGN

THEY call it "The Pericardium." It is a house of hearts owned by Mrs. E. C. Calder, wife of a physician in Pasadena, Cal. The pericardium is the covering of the heart—Everything in and about the house is a heart, from the shape of the metal door-mat to the sand wiches and cookies in the pantry.

All the furniture is heart-shaped. Mrs. Calder's bed, for example, has a heart-shaped headboard.

The posts are high and represent Cupid's arrows, which are heart-shaped, too. The footboard is made up of two large hearts with a smaller one between them.

The center table in the library is heart-shaped, a lower shelf is composed of two hearts and the legs have heart-shaped feet.

The wicker shade of the lamp upon the table is adorned with a row of hearts around it.

Among the pieces of furniture in the dining room is an afternoon tea set, consisting of a table, a stool and a curate. The tops and shelves of these pieces are cut in the form of maple leaves, but the maple leaves are nothing more than hearts with serrated edges.

All the teacups are heart-shaped and the same motif is carried out with all the sandwiches and confections that are served at afternoon tea.

Mrs. Calder, of course, wears heart-shaped jewelry.

Her clothing, too, is embroidered with heart designs, her eyeglasses are heart-shaped, she carries a heart-shaped key ring and the monogram on her stationery takes the form of a heart.

"The Pericardium" appears in large letters on a heart-shaped sign hung from the cornice of the front porch.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

The American delegates to the Advertising convention in England were cordially received. Many things were said at this convention to indicate that the subject of advertising has passed from the region of extraordinary and unusual things into the realm of law and customs.

Most emphasis perhaps was laid upon the slogan, "Truth in Advertising." This recognizes the great law of business which is that any one who expects to remain in business must depend very largely upon the good will of his customers and that good will cannot be obtained unless his performance is equal to his profession.

The old motto, "caveat emptor"—let the buyer beware—has passed. Now the seller defends and protects his customer, it is a part of his calling. The good business man recognizes that unless he faithfully fulfills his promise he cannot remain in business.

I received, sometime ago, a book from a mail order concern in Chicago. It was a large book and upon its front page was the statement that any of the goods advertised in it could be returned, at the expense of the house, for no matter what reason. This is a novel and unusual statement. Fifty years ago it would have been unheard of. The merchant at that time bargained himself behind his privilege and held that the buyer must take all the consequences of his purchase no matter how disappointing it was.

Business is made up largely of good will, which has been defined as the disposition of any purchaser to return to the seller from whom he has purchased before. This good will cannot be obtained unless it is founded upon the fact that the merchant's representations have always been truthful.

Naturally the buyer is skeptical, and, notwithstanding all that has been done, he is often deluded by extravagant advertising. The wise merchant, therefore, will take care that his advertisements habitually understate and do not overstate his case.

Little by little, fraud and chicanery eliminate themselves. It is demonstrated that, as business rises to the dignity of a profession, it must be based upon truth and honesty. In so doing it attracts to itself the best portion of the people and, more and more, business becomes a preferred career.

There is no doubt that the era of the priest and the soldier is past and the era of the business man is at hand. For business remains the one calling above all others because it is engaged in the great business of supplying mankind its needs, in administering to the life of the people and not to their death.

In New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Mulberry street. Know on the East Side. Where the kiddies used the sidewalk for a school slate. A medley of colors, rasping to alien olfactory organs. Tenement houses, with refuse receptacles on the front door stoop. There are no alleys.

Grimy-faced children, reared in defiance to all rules of sanitation, are healthy, happy and industrious. Street peddlars. Offering fruit of the season. And bananas are plentiful. Fish, displayed in running water. Smoked meats. A sleepy cat guarding. Socks and gals pink stockings. A pair and a half for 45 cents. Eggs from 3 to 5 cents apiece. I wouldn't want scrambled eggs unless I had a dime.

Cigars made while you wait. Long and black and treacherous looking. Bedding airing on the fire escapes. Buxom women hanging out of third story windows, lazily gazing at the sleds beneath. Contentment in squalor.

Traffic policemen at every block. Boker faces and slanting peering eyes. They direct the constant ebb and flow of vehicles and pedestrians unobscuredly. Their thoughts are on other things. Desperate criminals in this area.

Salesmanship at its sleight. One of three young men approach me. "Stranger down here, eh?" he queried. "Whenever you want any booze call me," he continued. I took his card and promptly lost it. I wouldn't want to get caught with that in my wallet.

Storekeepers who stand on the sidewalk and taking pedestrians by the arm attempt to steer them into their stores for purchases. They are more frequently successful than you would suspect.

Monkeys have delicate appetites. Roco, a pet store monkey, got hungry over the week-end and tearing himself loose began to devour canaries. He had consumed $128 worth of current retail prices before a small boy was boosted through a transom to chain Roco to his perch.

EVANS SAYS HUDSON BANISHED FROM KLAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma Ku Klux Klan has the backing of the national organization in his stand against the Oklahoma insurgents, headed by W. E. Hudson, according to Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans.

Evans pointed out today that Hudson had no power to offer resolutions to the national body for a "clean up" in Oklahoma Klan circles because Hudson has been banished from the order.

REGARD COUZENS' VICTORY AS TRIBUTE TO VOTERS

Independent political critics regard the victory of Senator James Couzens of Michigan as a tribute to the intelligence of the voters of the state. Chief Justice Arthur J. Tuttle, his leading rival, based his campaign on the fact that Couzens is not a Coolidge republican and the issues used most against Couzens were that he is not a regular republican and that he personally does not favor the prohibition laws, although he has pledged himself to uphold them.

Couzens' friends and followers carried on his campaign of their volition and without his solicitation. His opposition, on the other hand, was highly organized. His campaign was one of the most unusual in Michigan political history, since he refused to make extended speaking tours, spoke not more than a dozen times and spent less than three hundred dollars to win the renomination, although he is reputed to be worth forty million dollars.

According to the Detroit newspapers, in winning, Senator Couzens overcame the united opposition of three powerful minorities—the Michigan anti-saloon league, the reactionary element in the republican party and the elements trying to capitalize racial and religious prejudice. Mrs. Couzens and her children are Catholics.

Detroit is a city of more than a million population and Detroit voters gave Couzens almost a hundred thousand majority. There were four candidates in the field. Justice Tuttle received 250,000 votes, Couzens received 303,000 votes while the also rans received a vote totaling sixty thousand.

A plurality wins in Michigan, in a primary election and the friends of Couzens are confident that the senator will have a majority over all when the result of the official count is announced.

Was this a black eye for Coolidge? Was this a black eye for Mellon? Was this a black eye for Dr. Atticus Webb's followers in Michigan? Was it a victory for the liberal republicans in Michigan?

OF INTEREST TO COTTON GROWERS

Norway invaded Wall street and borrowed twenty-five million dollars paying six per cent for the same. Domingo invaded Wall street and borrowed ten million dollars for the purpose to retire outstanding bonds and for other government uses.

Money is cheap in Wall Street this year. International bankers are behind the Dawes reparations plan. Germany has accepted the plan. It is practically in full force on the surface. There will be a German loan of four hundred million dollars as a starter and the bankers of the world, mostly American and British, are planning to float the loan.

All this is of interest to the cotton grower of the south. All the war ridden countries are coming back and the faster they come the more American cotton will they purchase. There may be a crop of thirteen million bales this year.

American mills consume less than six million bales. Foreigners take the surplus. It goes without saying that unless the foreigners have a fair share of prosperity, the cotton grower of the south is the man who will be pinched. Japan is another large buyer of American cotton and the Japanese mills are expanding all the time.

It may be possible for the very wealthy to get along without the assistance of foreigners but the wheat and the cotton farmers of America must sell their surplus staple somewhere or endure the privations which are inflicted by grinding poverty.

AN IDLE DREAM

President Coolidge has permitted his fellow countrymen to know his viewpoint as the result of the Dawes reparations agreement. "It looks as if the end of the war had come at last and the beginning of an honorable and we hope a lasting peace is at hand."

And the armistice was signed six years ago. Ratification of the league of nations covenant would have brought peace to the world at least four years ago. American politicians, mostly republicans, defeated ratification.

Now the international bankers of the world have made it possible for peace to come. General Charles G. Dawes was their representative. His plan went over. That is, the plan which was formulated by General Dawes and Owen D. Young. General Dawes is a candidate for vice president, the nominee of a great party, but Owen D. Young is to be the agent of the international bankers and will exercise more power in Germany than the Kaiser ever wielded.

America is sitting on the top of the world. Americans are loaning money to all the nations of the earth. Here is hoping that the sixteen billion dollars loaned by the United States government to foreign nations in war time will be paid some day. This will make it easier for Jones, the great American freight payer.

A STORY THAT WE SHOULD TELL TO OTHERS

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, Sept. 28: Review of the Quarter's Lessons on the Opening Period of Christ's Ministry.
By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor-in-Chief of The Congregationalist

Where should we go for the best story of the life of Jesus? Nowhere but to the New Testament itself. Here, in what we call the "Gospels," is at once the simplest, most authoritative, and most beautiful story of all.

There may be helps in the reading of that story. Also the Gospel records do not give us the complete story of Jesus, for that story will never be completed until the love and power of the Great Redeemer have fulfilled their purpose in earth and heaven.
An eminent English preacher has called the life of Jesus "the incomplete biography," and every story of the divine influence as the life of Jesus is made manifest in the hearts of men, and in what they accomplish through the living Christ, is a chapter in that incomplete, and continuing, biography.

That is a fine thought. But none the less we begin the earthly life of Jesus in the New Testament, and it is with the simple story in the Gospels that we shall end.

So these lessons of the quarter begin for us the most wonderful of all biographies. To know Jesus is the most important thing in the world, and there is no better way of knowing Jesus than to go about with Him as He goes about doing good, and to listen to His teachings as they fall from His lips.

We shall not pay so much attention then to what people say about Him, for we shall know Him for ourselves.

Nobody can read the marvelous story of the Gospels day after day without having his life a nobler, and without feeling that all of life itself has been made richer for the teachers, and Bible students, and will be based on "The Historical Bible," by Professor Charles Foster Kent, of Yale University. Everyone is welcome to these studies.

1. Arise with your heart and mind inspired with the idea of spending the day at church.
2. Make your plans to include Sunday school as a part of your program.
3. If your neighbor does not attend services, invite him and tell him some things about the church.
4. Ask those who do not belong to the church to do so at the earliest convenience.
5. Make every effort to be at the First M. E. Church, South, next Sunday with the entire family.

A prayer for you:
While the following prayer carries with it the suggestion that it was written for use by juniors, it has enough in it that none of us ever outgrows to make us pause and consider its words as they relate themselves to our daily contacts with people and things.
Give me clean hands, clean words, and clean thoughts;
Help me to stand for the hard right against the easy wrong;
Save me from habits that harm;
Teach me to work as hard and play as fair in Thy sight alone as if all the world saw;
Forgive me when I am unkind; and help me to forgive those who are unkind to me;
Help me to help others at some cost to myself.
Send me chances to do a little good every day, and so grow more like Thee.

Downtown Parade Today For Opening Grid Game

Yellowjackets Fray With Dayton High Will Start at 3:15

Today's Probable Starting Lineup

Port Arthur	Dayton
Trow (135) Right End	(160) Andrews
Bour (136) Right Tackle	(153) Guicy
Turner (187) Right Guard	(153) Johnson
Blanchard (145) Center	(154) Whitney
R. Butaud (200) Left Guard	(145) Hatcher
Taylor (196) Left Tackle	(194) Byrum
Crow (150) Left End	(155) Bercheen
Iglesias (136) Quarter Back	(133) Wilkerson
Morgan (150) Right Half	(148) Smith
W. Butaud (150) Full Back	(174) Brown

IF NOISE means anything, Port Arthur will clean up on the Dayton football team this afternoon in the opener of the season. There wasn't anything but noise last night when the high school boys strutted their stuff downtown in a shirt-tail parade. Or maybe it wasn't a shirt-tail parade after all, because the girls were in the parade equally strong.

Port Arthur high school students claimed last night's affair was the prelude to the demise of Dayton this afternoon, and carried Dayton's black casket last night.

However, last night's parade won't be all, because another parade today will keep things steamed up. Today's parade will start at 1:15 from the library building and will come down Procter street through the downtown district, reverse itself and proceed to Franklin field for the game to start at 3:15. The Yellowjacket girls will lead today's parade. Miss Eva Guidry, sponsor, being in the lead together with her maid. The high school also will participate.

Final Plans for cheering the Yellowjackets team on to victory were made at the high school yesterday when Glenn Hall was chosen cheerleader of the high school roots, with Misses Nellie Long and Irene Davis as assistants.

Port Arthur's team should win today, but the high school boys merely say they hope they will win and let it go at that. Dayton has a team that has been playing together for the last two years, and several of the players have had three years experience. Three years ago Dayton played its first football, but with each year improvement has been shown. This year the boys are under the direction of a football coach for the first time, and may make things rather interesting for some of the southeastern Texas contestants.

The Yellowjackets average about the same as Dayton on the whole, but the Port Arthur weight is concentrated in the line in two or three tummy places, and the Yellowjacket backfield is slightly lighter than Dayton's.

Straight Football Likely
With a heavier line, Port Arthur probably will be content today with straight football, but Coach Smith has not ventured anything as to his tactics in coming games. No injuries will handicap Port Arthur today, for every man of the 35 to be in today's squad is fit.

Today's game will be the starter for Orange next Saturday, another Franklin field game. Orange is playing South Park College of Beaumont today at Orange. One week later the Yellowjackets will play South Park High of Beaumont here, and efforts are being made to bring Sour Lake here as an attraction during the fair.

Joky Elam will referee today's game, with Slover as head linesman. The umpire has not been selected.

Baylor-Simmons Most Interesting State Game Slated Today

TEXAS TACKLES PIRATES TODAY

S. M. U. to Play Denton Teachers Today

Football ran quite to form yesterday in the few games that were scheduled over Texas.

The Aggies ran over Trinity 33 to 0, but it was not until the second half that the A. & M. eleven began to show anything. Throughout the first half Bible's team is reported as having played a somewhat mediocre class of football, scoring only a two-point safety. When the second half opened, the team went into the game with some determination inspired by their coach and snapped out of it promptly, scoring 31 more points. Berry ran the Aggie team as quarterback and flashed some good runs.

Aggies Must Work Fast
Fay Wilson still has not learned to punt, if the reports received this morning mean anything. Wilson's punts yesterday were low, slow in getting off and twice Wilson failed in kicking for extra point after a touchdown. However, the Aggies made 17 first downs to one for Trinity, quite out of proportion to the score made.

The Aggies showed considerable improvement over their game of last week, it seems, and yet they will have to show a great deal more if they expect to repeat their last year's triumph over Sewanee. That important game comes during the second week of October.

T. C. U. defeated Commerce Teachers yesterday, quite as expected, 45 to 0. The score means nothing as to the Horned Frog strength, for Commerce probably has not a great deal more than an average high school team might boast. The Stephen F. Austin Lumber Jacks from the new teachers' college at Nacogdoches won from the Sam Houston Teachers of Huntsville by a freak score of 3 to 2. The Lumber Jacks scored a 25-yard place kick and the Bear Cats scored a safety in the last quarter. Last year the powerful St. Edwards' college Catholics of Austin won from Simmons college at Abilene by the same score. St. Ed's coming through with a field goal in the last quarter after Simmons had led all the way with a two-point safety.

Texas Plays Southwestern

Of interest to the conference is the 60 defeat Phillips of End, Okla., received yesterday from Fairmont at Wichita, Kansas. Phillips plays Texas U. at Austin next month, and this year probably will be lucky to escape with a defeat margin of less than seven or eight touchdowns. Not so many years ago Phillips whaled the stuffings out of a creek Longhorn team 10 to 0, that game being only too well remembered by some of the University oldtimers.

Today's southwestern games will afford something of a line on some of the various teams, although none of the games are tests of the first water. Baylor probably faces the hardest assignment today against Simmons college at Abilene. Simmons is being coached by Shotwell, last year's Abilene High coach, and on the Cowboy team are a number of last year's Abilene players. Freshmen are allowed to play on the intercollegiate teams at Simmons and Baylor, despite its great prospects, may have a hard time today.

Texas plays the Southwestern Pirates at Austin, a game that the Longhorns will win by a margin of about four touchdowns, possibly more, we judge. Texas has been waiting about the absence of a quarterback, but "Doctor" Stearns has been trying out nine men for the place since training started, according to reports, and after today's game he probably will have rather definitely decided who will call signals for the Longhorns this year. Last year, Stewart made over Robertson from a halfback into perhaps the best quarterback in the conference. Stewart is a versatile man, with many a weary year of coaching behind him, and he will very probably throw a surprise into more than one conference team this fall.

S. M. U. Plays "Pie" Game

S. M. U. with championship booming still higher as the result of Buddy King, star center, returning to school, plays the North Texas Teachers of Denton at Dallas today. This should be "pie" for the Mustangs, and probably S. M. U. will roll up by far the highest score of any team today. Baylor has been in the habit of mopping up on the Eagles in their opening game by tremendous scores, and S. M. U. should do as well.

Arkansas and Rice, conference teams, do not open until next week, while Oklahoma A. & M. plays the Southwestern Oklahoma Teachers at Stillwater, Okla.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, has been matched to meet Paul Berlenbach, sensational New York sweater at Madison Square Garden, October 24. The match hasn't been sanctioned and may meet some difficulties as Gene Tunney claims to have a contract calling for first crack at the Irishman.

Rudy Dusek Defeats Stewart at Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 27.—In a whirlwind finish Rudy Dusek, Nebraska wrestler, took two falls from Jimmy Stewart, New York grappler, here last night.

Dusek lost the first fall but easily dropped Stewart in the second after a long session of painful milling in the third, Dusek dropped the New Yorker for the deciding fall.

Hurdles Star Seeks Football Honors

DAN KINSEY

The gentleman shown here in football regalia is a little unaccustomed to his new togs, he being none other than Dan Kinsey, famous hurdler, who brought glory to the University of Illinois by breaking a world record in the Olympics.

Dan is fired with the ambition of being another Red Grange and is practicing with Zuppke's Illinois eleven. He's considered a promising candidate for the backfield. If he does as well on gridiron as under path he'll be a fitting running mate for the great Grange.

CLASSIC PLAYS OF THE GRIDIRON

Quarterback With Dislocated Shoulder Scores Three Touchdowns in Five Minutes

BY OSSIE SOLEM

Football Coach, Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa

Two weeks before our big Thanksgiving Day game with Brinnell in 1921, we had lost both our halfbacks. One with an injured ankle, the other with a dislocated shoulder. And at the end of the first half Grinnell had us beaten 10 to 0.

During the third quarter our situation got no better, so it was time for a bold strike. Time was called and out onto the field trotted "Bill" Boelter, the half-back with the dislocated shoulder.

Give me a sound-bodies substitute in preference to a crippled star, I seem to hear you saying. And ordinarily I'd vote that way myself. But let's follow developments in this instance.

Boelter's entry into the game was automatically the signal for forward-passing fireworks to start. In the next five minutes we flung four passes, and Boelter carried three of them to touchdowns, with runs ranging from 20 to 40 yards after receiving the ball.

Drake 21—Grinnell 10. That's the only answer to those who questioned the wisdom of sending Boelter into the game. Some players seem to have, in addition to marvelous natural ability, a sort of magic spark that puts new life into a laboring machine. Such a one was "Bill" Boelter. Sending him into the game was more than the injection of a limp arm and heroic figure. It was breathing new spirit into the whole Drake team.

Never have I seen as spectacular pinch-hitting as Boelter's handling of passes and running in that conflictive overhead rally.

But his performance that day was only typical of his exploits throughout a three-year career ending last fall, in which his feats were recognized by numerous critics in their section of Missouri Valley and All Western mythical teams.

NEW YORK HAS FIGHTING HOPE

Washington Still Ahead By One Full Game

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—One down behind the speeding Washington Senators and with only three to go, the New York Yankees are almost back in the pennant race.

While their chances aren't any too promising, they are improved by at least one game.

While Alec Ferguson, Yankee cast-off, was holding the Senators yesterday and giving the Red Sox a 2 to 1 victory, the Yankees were playing championship ball that could have been displayed to greater advantage recently in Detroit. The Yankees beat the Athletics, 7 to 1 and closed up the gap by one full game.

Dugan Injured
Joe Dugan was hurt but his loss would not be fatal because Mike McNally can play the bag for a few days almost as well.

With a lead of only one game, the Senators now have to win their three remaining games to clinch the American league pennant. The two contending teams have three games each to play. If the Senators win all their remaining games and the Yankees are not beaten in Philadelphia, the pennant will go to Washington by one full game.

If the Senators lose one more game in Boston and the Yankees

LONDON, Sept. 27.—It's reported here that Swedish sportsmen are seeking a fight between Larry Persson, Swedish heavyweight, and Jack Dempsey, to be held in London or Stockholm. Persson has won several recent bouts and if he wins his next with Humbeck, the Belgian heavyweight, sportsmen feel he should have a try at Dempsey.

NEW ORLEANS FIGHTER WILL MEET BRITTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Young Maurelio, New Orleans middleweight, has been substituted for Frank Moody, the Englishman, against Billy Britton in the Friday night show at Madison Square Garden. Jack Delaney and Jimmy Slattery will meet in the main go.

MEMPHIS GOES TO FORT WORTH

Cats to Make Desperate Effort Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Memphis and Fort Worth baseball teams are in Fort Worth today where they resume play in the Dixie championship this afternoon.

Memphis made it two straight yesterday, winning 2 to 1. Three games have been played, the first ending in a tie and Memphis copping the next two.

Tom Rodgers and Tom Kelly pitched for Memphis yesterday. Rodgers was taken out for a pinch hitter, Jimmy Walkup, left-hander, was the Fort Worth hurler.

An error by Phelan in the seventh enabled Memphis to tie and Memphis took the lead in the next frame.

SCIENTIST SAYS HE DUG TUNNEL

But Mystery Still Shrouds Washington Labyrinth

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The great Washington tunnel mystery which was running along at break-neck speed threatening to become an international sensation, suddenly developed a flat tire today with the admission of a gray-haired scientist of the Smithsonian Institute that he dug the tunnels 20 years ago, "for exercise."

The origin and first purpose of the tunnels thus is explained, but the tenacity of the labyrinth since he sealed it up ten years ago, the litter of German newspapers and the profusion of bottles still gives life to the lurid stories of spies and boot-leggers.

Mania for Catacombs
Harrison G. Dyar, Smithsonian entomologist, says he's the man who dug them.

"I did it for exercise," he said. "Digging tunnels after work is my hobby."

Dyar said he started digging the tunnels in 1905 or 1906.

quadruple pulleys and across the land the winches also was a tedious task, requiring scores of men, and even a greater task was the slinging of the cables around the submerged hull, two divers having been engaged on this. Thousands of feet of additional cable for use in case that rigging up broke under the strain also were assembled by the engineers as a part of the salvaging equipment.

Run Steam Lines

Steam lines were run out from the government dredge Kimble to the eight winches, and a large water hose provided fresh water for the steam pipe driver, the dredge, engineers' tug Ionia, and other steam operated equipment brought to the scene of the wreck. The battery of centrifugal pumps on the derrier barge, part of the D. M. Pictou Towing company's equipment, was ready to come alongside the Isonzo.

Immediately after the Isonzo sank Tuesday of last week, government engineers, representatives of the Italian owners of the Isonzo, marine insurance agents and Sabine district marine officials started a series of conferences for clearing the wreck out of the canal, but it was not until last Saturday that Major J. L. Schley, U. S. government engineer for the Galveston district, seized the vessel and started salvaging operations. Responsibility of salvaging the wreck and cargo was first the responsibility of the owners of the vessel, or their agents, according to Major Schley. The portion of the deck load which remained on the Isonzo after she turned over was taken out of the water and loaded on a barge by the P. C. Pfeiffer stevedoring firm, of Port Arthur, awarded the contract for this work.

PORT HURON, Mich., Sept. 27.—The missing whaleback freighter, Clifton, feared to have gone down with its crew of 25, docked at Croella 15 miles from here, Tuesday, and left a few hours later for Port Huron, it was learned this afternoon. No word has been heard of the vessel since. The boat is more than 60 hours overdue.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MINISTER

No Trace of Man and 14-Year-Old Girl

ALLUWE, Okla., Sept. 27.—A broken-hearted and exhausted mother today lay in bed while her 14-year-old daughter fled across country, evading the arm of the law with her preacher-lover, Rev. Joseph E. Yates, 46 years old.

The nation-wide search for Georgia Fields and the pastor of the Alluwe Methodist church turned to Tennessee today.

"I believe he has taken my daughter to Tennessee," A. W. Fields, father of the girl told the United Press today. "Following the refusal of a minister in Kansas to marry them."

Persons under 18 years of age are permitted to marry in Tennessee. It is against the law for persons under 18 years of age to marry in Kansas and Oklahoma without consent of their parents.

Yates and his "love child" do not possess much money, was the opinion today of Nowata county officials after an investigation of Yates financial affairs.

HAMBURGER VENDOR CALLED COUNTERFEITER

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 27.—Safe behind his hamburger stand since 1918, Nicholas Maginos, convicted in Mobile in 1916 for counterfeiting yesterday fell into the hands of a federal secret service man who recognized him in spite of his calling. Maginos, it was said by the United States commissioner today, was convicted but released on his own bond. He disappeared, arriving here in 1918 and opening the hamburger stand which served to give him freedom for six years. He was released on $2,500 bond to appear in federal court in Mobile on November 27.

NO. 4—THE SOUR OLD WOMAN UNDER THE WATER FALL

"Come right in, all of you," said she.

Nancy and Nick and the Sand Man left the house of the kind Green Wizard in the treetops and went toward the house of the Sour Old Woman Who Lived Under the Water-Fall.

"Tap, tap, tap," they went on her front door.

The Sour Old Woman herself opened it.

"How do you do?" she said sourly. "What do you want?"

"We came to get my bag of sleepy sand," said the Sand Man. "Someone stole it."

"Well, I can't help that, can I?" said the Sour Old Woman.

"Maybe not," said Nick. "But you can help us. It's time for all the babies to go to sleep and they can't unless the Sand Man finds his bag of sleepy sand. We just came from the Green Wizard's house and we looked into his magic gazing ball."

"What's that?" shouted the Sour Old Woman. "What's all this about a magic gazing ball? What did you see?"

"We saw Tweedknose come to your house and put the magic sand under the floor," said Nick.

At that the Sour Old Woman smiled a sour smile and opened her door wide.

"Come right in, all of you," said she. "I just wanted to see how smart you were. Of course Tweedknose stole the sleepy sand. He loves to tease the babies, the kids, and he has always been jealous of the Sand Man. You'll find the bag of sand right here."

She lifted a loose board in the floor and pointed down to the cellar.

"Jump down and get it," she said.

Down jumped Nancy and down jumped the Sand Man.

But no sooner had they all jumped down into the Sour Old Woman's cellar than she let the board fall down into its place again, and there they were!

"Goodness!" said the Sand Man. "Here's the sleepy sand all right. But much good it does me when I can't get out."

"Don't worry," said Nancy. "We have our magic shoes."

"That's right," said the Sand Man in a relieved voice. "You and Nick can get out in fine shape. But I can't."

"Why?" asked Nick. "Haven't you any magic along?"

"Lots," said the Sand Man. "But somebody will have to stay here and make a noise to fool the Sour Old Woman, or she'll know we have gone. It's two o'clock now and time for afternoon naps."

"I have a plan," said Nancy all at once. "Nick and I can take the sleepy sand and sprinkle it around while you stay here. Then we will come back and get you."

"That's a fine idea," said the Sand Man.

So the Twins took the bag of sleepy sand and away they went right through walls and everything in their magic shoes. And it wasn't long until all the babies were asleep. The world was very, very quiet.

But the poor Sand Man was tired. He had had a hard day traveling all the way from Shut-Eye Town, where he lived, and with his hay-fever and everything, he was worn out.

And instead of stamping around to fool the Sour Old Woman, he fell asleep.

THE FIRST TRIP "ROUND THE WORLD"

Part X—The End of the Great Voyage

After getting under the Cape of Good Hope, the little ship Victoria struggled bravely toward the north. A fresh supply of food and water had been taken on from the southern coast of Africa; but now the sailors were far from land. They had to reach a safe harbor before supplies gave out, or else they would die.

Week followed week, and good winds aided them over the South Atlantic. Food became scarce, however, and the sailors began to grow weak and sick. Twenty-one died before the Cape Verde Islands were sighted.

Now came the question: "Do we dare go into harbor? These Indians are in the hands of the Portuguese. If they find out that we have been getting trade in the Spice Islands they will kill us."

In spite of this danger, Capt. Del Cano decided to dock the ship. It was better to risk bullets than to starve to death.

A boat was sent ashore with some goods from the ship. In exchange, two loads of rice were sent back. The third time the small boat went ashore it was seized by the Portuguese, with 13 men.

The captain of the Victoria thought it was high time to leave that region, and the ship set sail for Spain. On Sept. 6, 1522, the harbor of San Lúcar was reached. That was the same port from which they had set sail almost three years before. By sailing westward, they had gone clear around the world. They had proved the roundness of the earth.

Here we see "the world" as drawn on a map made some years after the ship Victoria got back to Spain, following its trip around the earth. The map makes the error of joining North America to Asia, but in other ways it is fairly good.

Only 18 men were aboard the Victoria when it returned to Spain. Almost all were sick, but I am sure they were happy anyway. They had done what men had never done before. They were heroes, and their deed would ring down the ages.
